Indiana Criminal Justice Institute
December 2002 Indiana Citizens Planning Survey

The Indiana Criminal Justice Institute December 2002 Indiana Citizens Planning Survey was designed to assess Indiana residents' opinions and concerns about crime and other public safety issues. The instrument consisted of 34 questions covering perceptions, experiences, and knowledge related to the following topics:

- a. crime in local communities;
- b. the root cause of crime;
- c. the relationship between crime, alcohol, and illegal drugs;
- d. access to tobacco, alcohol, and illegal drugs among youth;
- e. automatic waivers to adult court for youth who commit certain crimes;
- f. access to justice records for youth by organizations that serve youth;
- g. the service needs of people victimized by violent crime and accessibility to those services;
- h. the prevalence of seat belt use and attitudes toward wearing seat belts;
- i. drowsy, distracted, aggressive, and alcohol-impaired driving; and
- j. terrorism preparedness.

Quota sampling was used to obtain a sample of 405 respondents representative of all Indiana adult residents based on race, sex, and age. Residency was defined as having lived in Indiana for at least three years.

Telephone interviews were conducted by professional interviewers at the Indiana University Public Opinion Laboratory from specialized facilities on the Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis campus. Interviews were conducted from December 11 to December 17, 2002, with calls made between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, 12:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. on Saturday, and 4:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Sunday. Return calls were placed at other times if respondents so requested. Telephone numbers were selected using the random digit dialing method with known prefixes in Indiana counties.

Study interviewers were selected from the Indiana University Public Opinion Laboratory's pool of more than 100 trained interviewers. All interviewers had at least one year of interviewing experience; with some interviewers having more than four years experience. Regardless of past experience, all interviewers involved with the current study received at least four hours of general interviewer training and two additional hours of specific training on the Institute's planning survey.

Upon submitting the raw data file to the Institute, the Indiana University Public Opinion Laboratory noted that they "have no reason to believe there are any significant biases in the data collected for this research" due to such things as question wording, respondent inattention, [and] pace of speech by the interviewer. "Each of these is given special attention during interviewer training and the data collection phase so they are minimized as much as possible."

Study interviewers were given a set of answers titled "What the Respondent Might Like to Know" to provide standard answers to any questions raised by individuals contacted for participation in this study. Interviewers reported that most people contacted were polite and genuinely eager to participate.

Applying standard formulas recommended by the American Association for Public Opinion Research, the Indiana University Public Opinion Laboratory reported that they "believe, strongly, that the data we collected is [sic] representative of the residents of Indiana. . ." The maximum margin of error associated with survey results is +/- 4.9% at the 95% confidence level. In other words, it is expected that 95 out of 100 times any given finding reported here would be replicated within 4.9 percentage points either way if another representative sample of Indiana adult residents were to be drawn.

The questions asked and descriptive findings are presented in order in the following pages.
